TRAINING FOR HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS

Pennsylvania Mid Atlantic AIDS Education Training Centers (AETC)
www.pamaaetc.org

The University of Maryland, Institute of Human Virology (IHV) AETC Local Performance Site
HIV prevention and counseling educational trainings coordinated by the IHV are available to medical providers and healthcare workers throughout the State of Maryland. These courses serve to enhance knowledge and skills in working effectively with patients/clients and the community to promote primary and secondary prevention of HIV infection, as well as improving the quality of care for persons living with HIV/AIDS. Risk assessment, harm reduction, communications skills and HIV transmission prevention counseling are included in most courses.

Abby Plusen, MSSW, Site Director
Phone: (410) 328-2436
aplusen@medicine.umd.edu

Johns Hopkins University AETC Local Performance Site
The Johns Hopkins Local Performance Site, in conjunction with the University AIDS Service and the Moore Clinic, make available education, consultation, and referral sources to community healthcare providers treating HIV patients. With the Moore Clinic celebrating its twentieth year in HIV/AIDS care, the HIV treatment providers in Maryland have come to regard the AETC at Hopkins as the educational extension of the Hospital’s continuous commitment to the HIV+ population.
